The DeBose program, which was established at Southern University's Baton Rouge campus in 1974, is an annual Fine Arts Series presented by the DeBose Foundation, Inc. and Southern's Department of Visual and Performing Arts. The program honors the legacy of the university's former Music Division Chairman and professor Tourgee DeBose.

As an innovative pioneer, DeBose motivated students and arts devotees for more than three decades; providing music education for Louisiana's first African American teachers and professional artists. Throughout Louisiana and major cultural centers in the Southern region, his prodigious career exemplified intense discipline and scholarship in pursuit of artistic excellence.

The College and Young Artist Division of the DeBose National Piano Competition will resume in 2011.
